

Enterphone Family

Residential Telephone Entry System

The Enterphone Family is a feature-rich, integrated telephone entry system for facilities of any size, from small apartment buildings to large multi-family, multi-tenant condominium high-rises.

Using the same software-based design as Freedom Access Control, the Enterphone system is scalable and integrates with both Freedom as well as third-party Wiegand-based access control systems. All Enterphone products are configurable and administered using a common web-based browser.

The Enterphone panel product line offers many features, such as multiple languages, alternate number dialing, elevator control, and audio and visual screen prompts for visitor access. The system is scalable with other Enterphone panels to fit the needs of any customer, regardless of size. Identiv offers a variety of panels from a 10-inch screen version to a 21-inch model.

Each panel can be configured with custom screensavers, tailored to the needs of any building, with flush-mount and surface-mount options available. Designed for high traffic, each panel is encased in rugged metal casing and black, stainless steel, and brushed chrome finishes are available.

Web-Based Administration

- Configuration and administration via web page hosted by each panel
- Easy administration access from any PC on the local area network
- Remote administration via any securely authenticated device

Flexible Options

- Models available in both touch screen and non-touch
- Unlimited users/tenants and customizable screensaver
- Each panel supports up to seven languages out of the box
- No-phone-line option uses existing copper wiring to call units directly

Networked, Open, Scalable

- Standard IP securities (e.g., TLS encryption and SSL security)
- Integrates with Freedom and can output data to third-party systems via external Wiegand/RS232 converter
- Scalable for multiple panels, buildings, and locations; with addition of Enterphone server, end-user can manage from a single interface and location
